

February 16, 2008

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

When we selected Boerne as the area we desired to spend our retired life, we asked a real estate agent if it would be a problem to build a home rather than select a custom house already constructed. The agent replied "not if you have Israel Pena design and build it.

This recommendation created an excellent working relationship with Harry Craig, Director of Marketing at Authentic Custom Homes. The most impressive feature of this firm is the organization that amply handles all aspects of home building; review of a clients' interests, design, timing and budgetary limits. Brought into this initial session were the design, marketing and production personnel. It was a great feeling to know that all individuals involved in the project were readily available in the same office. We returned the next day to review the preliminary design with a projected cost to complete along with a list of suggested options.

Throughout the building period various people from Authentic Homes were in touch with us as to progress. Authentic has built two houses for us; the first one while we lived in California. We were informed by phone, letters and internet which included photos each week. There was never any concern as to the quality of their work. On personal visits to the construction site, we were amazed as to the detail that was designed and built into our home - small details that we would never have thought of.

We are currently living in the second home built by Authentic which incorporates several aspects of the first home and we are very proud of the results. If a minor item needed attention, it was immediately taken care of.

We highly recommend Authentic Custom Homes to all interested clientele.

Russell L. and Helen J. Kiernan
213 Village Drive
Boerne, Texas 78006